

Re. : Supplemental Amendment
Appl. No. : 10/789,581
Filed : February 26, 2004

II. REMARKS

The Notice of Allowance allowed Claims 28, 29, 52 and 54-58. By the amendments above, Claims 28, 52, and 57 have been amended and new claims 67-91 have been added.<sup>1</sup> Thus, Claims 28, 29, 52, 54-58 and 67-91 are currently pending, of which Claims 28, 52, 57, 76, 86 and 89 are the independent claims at issue.

The present application discloses that packets of voice data may be used to carry voice data via a network-based instant connect call.<sup>2</sup> The incoming voice data may be buffered and played.<sup>3</sup>

In some instances, some of the packets may arrive, but some may be dropped or lost.<sup>4</sup> For example, as shown in Figure 4, some packets 410 may arrive, while some packets may not.<sup>5</sup>

Because some of the packets may be missing, the recipient may find the voice data difficult to understand when played.<sup>6</sup>

The present application discloses a solution: "These missing packets can be requested and when all or some of the packets are received, they are inserted into the appropriate places in the buffered voice data. Thus, the buffered voice data is more complete and can be more easily <sup>1</sup> Support for these amendments may be found throughout the specification and drawings, including those portions highlighted in the overview below.

<sup>6</sup> See, e.g., Application ¶ [040] ("From the recipient's perspective, the voice data 254 may be difficult to understand because of the dropped packets 258.").

understood by a recipient.”<sup>7</sup> For example, as shown in Figure 4, the previously dropped or missing packets 422 may be requested and then inserted into the buffered voice data 420, thus improving the buffered voice data:<sup>8</sup>

Consequently, when a recipient device’s replay button is pressed, “the buffered voice data 406b that is played from the voice data buffer of the recipient’s device is more clear due to the packets that have been added or replaced.”<sup>9</sup>

The references previously cited do not disclose these features, nor the related features recited in the claims. Applicant thus submits that Claims 28, 29, 52, 54-58 and 67-91 are allowable over the cited references and are in condition for allowance. Accordingly, Applicant requests that a Notice of Allowance be promptly issued.
